

CONGRESSIONAL VOTE ON PROHIBITION IN OFFING

G. O. P. HIT IN JERSEY ELECTIONS

Democratic Forces in House Increased by One
as the Result
PRECEDENT IS UPSET

Widow of Sen. Caraway Boomed for Senate

Washington, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Elated
by victory in New Jersey yesterday the Democrats are becoming sanguine over the possibility of taking the last remaining vacant House seat in the first New Hampshire district.

The party holds 219 seats, two more than a bare majority, as a result of the election of Percy Stewart, of Plainfield, New Jersey, in the normally Republican fifth congressional district.

The leaders, among them, speaker-candidate Garner of Texas, called the result an omen for 1932's presidential election. Stewart's victory had converted a normal 55,000 Republican majority into an edge of 1,500 to 2,000 for the Democrats.

The New Hampshire district cannot be won in time for representation at the organization of the House, but the Democrats will need every vote even after the January 5 special election to fill it. The seat has been occupied by a Democrat once before in recent years.

Five out of seven recent elections to fill House vacancies have favored the Democrats. Three of the five victories took seats
which had been occupied by Republicans.

G. O. P. FORT INVADERS

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 2.—(AP)— Percy H. Stewart, Democrat, was elected to Congress from the regularly Republican fifth district of New Jersey by a plurality of 1-602 votes.

The special election yesterday saw a normally Republican majority of 35,000 overturned, with the complete returns from the 298 districts giving Stewart 31,567 and Donald H. McLean, Republican 29-555.

The National Republican administration was the major issue in the campaign in which Stewart, an ardent wet, urged a Democratic victory as a repudiation of President Hoover and his policies. McLean, answering the challenge,
pledged for support as a vote of confidence in the president.

Stewart's election adds a new result to the wet forces in Congress.
The late representative Ackerman, whose death necessitated yesterday's special election, was a prohibitionist.
Stewart will complete
Ackerman's unexpired term.

WOMAN FOR SENATE

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 2.—(AP)— Arkansas is virtually assured of marking a woman in the United States Senate until 1933—the first ever to hold such a position by election.

Mrs. Hattie W. Caraway, widow of Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway who died recently, was nominated unanimously yesterday by the Arkansas Democratic State Central committee to fill her husband's unexpired term. The special election will be held Jan. 12.
Nomination by the central committee is considered equivalent to victory.

RECEIVER IS ASKED FOR R-K-O CORP.

Baltimore, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Appointment of a receiver for the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, one of the largest theatrical and production concerns in the country,
was asked in a suit filed here today.

The receivership action asked also that the company and its officers be restrained from disposing of any assets. Judge Albert S. J.
Dwens, signed an order allowing the company until December 23 to show cause why the receivership and injunction should not be granted.

The suit was entered for J. Cookman Boyd, Baltimore attorney, a stockholder in the corporation, by his son, J. Cookman Boyd, Jr.

Radio-Keith-Orpheum is a Mary and Corporation although its principal offices are in New York.

PLEA MADE FOR TOM MOONEY BUT NO DECISION MADE YET

Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York, Takes Lead
in Appeal to California Governor

By BRIAN BELL.

San Francisco, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The case of Tom Mooney has been transferred from the solemn, almost drab chambers of the California
Supreme court, to the governor's office. The fate of the man who has served 15 years in prison for murder he says he did not commit rests with the only individual who can pardon him.

The pardoning power of Governor James Rolph, Jr., was stressed and restressed yesterday as James J.
Walker, Frank P. Walsh and Aaron Sapiro pleaded in impassioned tones for executive clemency for the man who was convicted of placing a death dealing bomb in the vicinity of a parade in San Francisco, July 22, 1916.

First Walsh, then Walker, and finally Sapiro reminded the California governor that in him alone lies hope for one of the most widely known prisoners in the world.

"No court can help him," said
Walker. "The League of Nations cannot aid him, none of the 47 governors can do any good, all the king's horses and all the king's men are powerless. Only your excellency, the governor of California,
can right this wrong, correct this miscarriage of justice."

Mooney will not know for weeks, perhaps months, whether he is to be freed or remain an attendant at the officers' and guards' mess at San Quentin. Governor Rolph and his advisors, Matt I. Sullivan and Lewis F. Hyington, representing the law, and Daniel J. O'Brien, state attorney, are also in the case.

REALTY VALUATIONS IN FAYETTE COUNTY SHRINK $5,661,580

City Knocked Down Almost Million Dollars and Remainder in Country

Fayette county's realty valuation based on this year's reappraise-ment, shows a shrinkage of $5,661-680 compared with the valuation last year, the total realty duplicate being $28,993,150, while the realty in this city, included in the above figures, shrank $904,180 under the new valuation as compared with last year's valuation.

The total valuation of real estate
in the county last year was $33-754,866.

In this city the valuation last year was $3,265,030 and the new valuation $7,358,850.

The figures were made known
Wednesday afternoon when the State Tax Commission, which was expected to make some cuts in the valuations in rural Fayette, approved

The receivers were named on its action on a claim of $49,651. The road likewise defaulted on large blamed in rail circles, for its plight.

KENTUCKY TOBACCO GROWERS REVOLT AGAINST LOW PRICE

SALES STOPPED BY IRATE JEERS AND MASS MEETING HELD —THREATS TO WRECK WAREHOUSES HEARD

Owensboro, Ky., Dec. 2.—(AP)—
Hundreds of farmers of the dark tobacco belt, disappointed and enraged by prices offered by buyers at Owensboro's auction floors, will sell no leaf here until higher prices are offered.

Sales were stopped at warehouses yesterday, when farmers shouted, jeered, threatened to wreck the warehouses, and refused to sell their leaf at the prices bid.
Owensboro banks reported they closed very few warehouse checks, indicating most of the farmers had rejected the offers.

Strands of Vari-Colored Lights Intertwined with Greenery to Swing Across Streets

The magic wand of Santa Claus has touched the stores in Washington C. H., suddenly transforming them into veritable Christmas headquarters, and within a few days the same wonderful wand of Old St. Nick will have touched the entire uptown district, and it will glow with a myriad of Christmas lights, sparkling through greenery and tinsel always a part of the greatest of all holiday seasons.

The Christmas season is reflected in many a show window, in display cases, on counters, shelves, and in fact nearly every nook and corner of the city's leading stores, and will be further augmented before the week is over, as additional large stocks of goods are spread out for the inspection of the buyer of gift things.

Already Christmas buying is under way, with a wide range of attractive gift things from which to select just what would most please the average person, and as there are only nineteen shopping days left before Christmas, there is the best reason in the world for shopping to get under way in real earnest now.

The merchants of the city have gone to a great deal of expense and effort to make their stores attractive and to offer a large line of holiday goods from which to select.

The Promotion Committee of the Business and Civic Association, which had the matter of Christmas decorations up with The Dayton Power and Light Company, has raised over $300, and as a result 22 strands of varicolored lights, interwoven with laurel, will be erected over the streets in the business area during this week.

It was originally planned to have 13 strands across the streets, each strand bearing a large number of red, green, and blue and white lights, but the response of the merchants was so prompt that the number was increased to 22, and still others may be added.

Nine of the strands will span Court street between North and Hinde streets, six will be on Main street from Market to East, and six will be on Fayette, from Market to

AL SMITH AT WORK SOLICITING RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYED

New York, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Now it's Alfred E. Smith, canvasser.

Puffing a black cigar but minus
the brown hard lid, the former governor trudged through his Greenwich village neighborhood for the unemployed today.

Into I. L. Romanoff's drug store
he popped so suddenly that an old gentleman sitting at the soda fountain spilled a glass of water on the ex-governor's trouser leg.

"I'm from the emergency unemployment fund," boomed Al's voice.
"I came to see if you wouldn't help cut the hungry folks, Mr. Romanoff."

"I guess I can spare a liver, governor," the druggist said.

To a delicatessen proprietor next door the approach was a little different.

"Your neighbor gave $5 what can you do?" Smith asked with a smile.
"Well, I guess I can double that,"
said the man.

"That's dandy. I always liked a delicatessen. It's the Lord's work, feeding people."

There were other donations, in-there were no refusals. It was a clucking $3 from a laundryman and test of the house-to-house canvass possibilities of a city-wide committee Smith heads.

4-H Club Style Show Gives Dame Fashion Some Ideas

Chicago, Dec. 2.—(AP)—America's healthiest 4-H club girl is 15 year old Gertrude Heikes of Dakota City, Nebr., and she's all but perfect so far as her physical condition is concerned.

She scored a total of 99.9 points to win the National 4-H Health contest over the competitors of fifteen other states. Only a slight imperfection in the alignment of her teeth kept her from a 100 per cent rating. And she's a good looking girl too. Miss Heikes is 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 137 pounds.
She has dark brown hair and eyes.

William Sanders, a husky 18-year-old blond youth of Hopewell, Ind., who like Miss Heikes lives on a farm, was proclaimed the healthiest
4-H boy, with a rating of 99.1.
A slight skin eruption, a defective nasal passage and somewhat faulty teeth were the only defects examiners could find.

Neither of the winners goes in for any special diet, but they both drink lots of milk, get up at the crack of dawn, aren't afraid of a little work, go to bed early, and last but possibly not least, they both eat spinach. They were emphatic about that. But cigarettes, coffee, tea or stimulants of any kind
are taboo.

Miss Heikes, who celebrates her 16th birthday tomorrow, attends the South Sioux City High school.

A total of 850,000 boys and girls participated in the various state contests, from which the finalists were named for yesterday's judging.

POLICE UNCOVER UNIQUE TRIANGLE

Here is Miss May Gledhill, 26-year-old "ski girl," whom police found in a Mineola, L. I., hospital after she had collapsed through fear that she and her two-year-old son, also above, would be deported to Canada. She and her son had been living with Mrs. William Cor-nor, middle-aged housewife, who took Miss Gledhill, a friend of her husband's, and her child, to her own home, while he served a penitentiary term for forgery. Mrs. Cornor told authorities that her husband writes love letters both to her and Miss Gledhill, one of Canada's foremost women athletes, and that they exchange them. Neighbors thought the child was Mrs. Cornor's.

JAPANESE DEMANDS INCREASED AND MANCHURIAN PEACE FADES

Sour Grapes, Eh King Carol Threatens Exile For Brother By Law That Curbed Him

Budapest, Dec. 2.—(AP)—
Prince Nikolaos of Rumania, has one more day, reports from Bucharest said today, to renounce his marriage to Mme.
Delet, a commoner, or be exiled from the royal family under a statute which has adopted originally to curb Carol himself.

The king, who spent several years in exile because of an affair with Mme. Magda Lupescu, recently was prevailed upon by his cabinet members in the interest of his favor with the people, to curb his wrath against his younger brother and he gave Nikolaos
two months to "think things over."

The prince wrote Carol defiant letters, however, the reports said, and now Carol has decided to banish him tomorrow, unless he repents.

The banish order would deprive the prince of all his prerogatives, his offices and his pay.

The cabinet ministers again opposed the king's move, it was reported, and Premier Morga, Carol's old tutor, is said even to have reminded the king of the history of the expulsion statute.

To this Carol replied that no prince should be allowed to
"make a fool of himself."

Rumanian politicians are understood to be interceding in Nikolaos' behalf.

Mikado Says His Troops Must Be Permitted to Chase Brigands

Paris, Dec. 2.—(AP)—News that the Japanese government was insisting that Marshall Chang Hsueh-Liang's government be withdrawn from Chinchow behind the Great Wall as well as his troops threw new alarm into League quarters
this afternoon.

This development was regarded as a threat to the hopes for an early agreement on the Council's resolution on plans for a pacific settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria.

A Japanese spokesman told The Associated Press "the council is not taking seriously our demand about the Chinese withdrawing from Chinchow but we mean business."

HUNGER MARCHERS NOW CROSSING OHIO

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 2.—(AP)— Fifty-three unemployed men who belied their title of "marchers" because they were transported in trucks and autos, left here today for Hamilton and Middletown on their way to Washington, D. C.

The men said they would demand unemployment insurance and relief in working conditions upon arrival at the national capital.

Sandusky, O., Dec. 2.—(AP)—The 140 unemployed marchers on their way to Washington, for government aid, ate lunch here today.

They arrived at the city limits at about noon, and planned to leave for Cleveland at 1 p. m.

There was no disorder. The marchers alighted from the trucks that brought them to the city limits and went on foot to the trade union diabol assembly hall.

BANKRUPT LEAVES FORTUNE BUT IT CAN'T BE LOCATED

CREDITORS LEFT "HOLDING THE BAG" START SEARCH FOR MYSTERIOUS $1,500,000 ESTATE—BUT HAVE NO SUCCESS

Pittsburgh, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Howard D. Montgomery, counsel for the widow of the late Ira S. Bassett, business man-evangelist, declared today creditors will not be able to attach Bassett's estate.
Bassett's father and brother reside at Mansfield, O.

Montgomery claims creditors can search for it, but cannot touch it, even though Bassett was never discharged from bankruptcy. His hidden assets are supposed to be worth $1,500,000 or more, but the whereabouts of the fortune are a mystery.

The method to be pursued by the searchers depends to some extent on whether the registrar of wills admits or refuses to probate
the will which Bassett cancelled
by letter. His daughter, Mrs. G. B.
Marks, is contesting its probate,
since it was shown by four witnesses that Bassett said the document must not stand. In this will he made Claude Sharp, Jr., executor, who, it is claimed, during Bassett's lifetime was engaged in obtaining assignments for Bassett from the latter's creditors in the bankruptcy proceeding which was never disposed of.

NO FEARS HELD FOR DRY LAWS

Senate Republican Chief
Will Not Stand in Way of Showdown

ISSUE IS INESCAPABLE

Leaders Agree Prohibi- tion Talk Blocks Progress

Washington, Dec. 2.—(AP)—A congressional vote on prohibition, long demanded by opponents of the national law and resisted by its friends, is in sight for the coming session.

Only today, Senator Watson—leader of the Senate Republicans—promised a showdown in that chamber. Members of both parties in the House already were expecting the new line-up there to result in rules under which a vote can be forced.

Senator Watson predicted a roll call of the new Senate would show
it is "overwhelmingly dry."

He agreed with sentiment widely expressed in both parties that economic questions should be given precedence this session, but told anti-prohibition advocates that if a temperance measure of any kind reached the Senate floor, he would not stand in the way of a vote.

"You can't prevent the subject coming up in my judgment," he declared.

Senator Bingham, Republican, of Connecticut, is going to push a prohibition referendum resolution providing for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

All prohibition legislation must first run the gauntlet of the judiciary committee headed by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska.

The anti-prohibitionists in the House especially desire a vote to place candidates for Congress on record in time for this 1932 campaign.

Many dries recognize that prohibition is high up in the minds of a large part of the population and that until a vote is had, these persons will not give economic issues as much consideration as otherwise.

Representative Henry T. Rainey, outstanding candidate for the Democratic floor leader, today voiced

CAPONE SEPARATED FROM GANG IN PEN

Washington, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The government moved today to separate convicted members of Chicago's Capone gang and ordered Ralph Capone, brother of Al, transferred from the United States penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, to the United States penitentiary at McNeil Island, Washington.

Ralph was taken to Leavenworth recently after the supreme court refused to review his conviction for income tax law violations.

Other members of the Capone gang are at Leavenworth. The government decided it would be better to prevent communication between the Capones and members of their gang.

Al Capone, leader of the gang, is in jail in Chicago, awaiting the outcome of an appeal from his heavy sentence for violating the income tax laws.

JURY IN DEADLOCK IN WOMAN'S TRIAL

Lewisburg, W. Va., Dec. 2.—(AP)—
The jury in the second trial of Mrs. Minnie Stull Princeton, charged with slaying her 9-year-old stepson, Mickey, today reported itself in hopeless disagreement and was discharged by Judge Summers H. Sharp.

The jury, which had deliberated six hours, reported it stood four for acquittal, six for second degree murder and two for voluntary manslaughter. Judge Sharp fixed January 19 as the date for the third trial and committed Mrs.
Stull to jail without bond.

TAX RELIEF ASSOCIATION DE-

Under date of October 23 The Herald carried in its news columns a warning issued to farmers, calling attention to activities of Tax Relief Groups in nearby counties.

The warning came as an aftermath to the recent annual meeting of the local Farm Bureau at which time a spokesman stated that a tax relief organization in a nearby county had collected fees amounting to $20,000 for which no accounting had been made—also that representatives of the group had been seen in Fayette county and that farmers should "watch out" for them.

Mr. M. L. Dickey of Bloomingburg says that he was present at the Farm Bureau meeting—heard the accusations made and was responsible for the suggestion that a warning should be issued to the farmers through the local press. Mr. Dickey further states that, recently, he has been shown a "retraction" of the accusation over the signature of a state officer of the Farm Bureau. He now feels that an injustice has been done that should be righted.

About 500 farmers in Fayette county are affected and the project under consideration is of a civic nature—non-partisan in character and non-political in aspect—representatives assert.

According to representatives of the Ohio Service and Tax Relief Association, the warning issued through the local Farm Bureau is but one of a series of attempts to throttle the efforts of their organization. They state that they have been the "target" in other counties although since officials have been "pinned down" to a signed retraction of actionable charges. Representatives of the Ohio Service and Tax Relief Association assert that the fullest investigation of their affairs is welcomed.

WILMINGTON CUTS EXPENSES $9,536

ALSO DRAWS ON GAS TAX TO HELP DEFRAY EXPENSES

Wilmington, Dec. 2—A program of rigid economy has been inaugurated by Wilmington officials, and $9,536 lopped from the appropriations for municipal departments.

Reduction in salaries of all city officials ranging from four to ten per cent are major features of the saving. A further saving is planned by moving all offices to the city building.

The new schedule of appropriations voted through by Council Monday night calls for an expenditure of approximately $27,000, $16,000 of which is fixed. The remainder, $11,000, provides for the general operation of the city government, and $6,000 of this goes to the law enforcement department.

During 1932 the salary of the Service Director will be paid from the gas tax fund instead of the general fund as before. He will take the title of Service Director and Street Commissioner.

The following annual salary schedule will go into effect January 1:

Mayor's salary, $1,400, decrease $60; Auditor $720, decrease $45; Treasurer $360, decrease $40; Solicitor $540, decrease $60; Safety Director $540, decrease $60; Service Director $540, decrease $60; Police $6,000, decrease $450; Custodian $1,500, decrease $120.

The positions of clerk to the City Solicitor and Deputy Auditor have been eliminated at a total saving annually of $840. Elimination of police vacations will save $368, that of custodian of the City Hall, $40; police uniforms, $300. Appropriations for traffic lights were transferred to the gas tax fund at a saving of more than $1,200.

FLASHES OF LIFE

By The Associated Press

Sanbury, Pa.—It was just like old times—back in 1850 or thereabouts. A child in a little limestone school house pointed out the window at a big buck deer. The teacher took down his rifle and slew the buck. Then classes were resumed.

Somerset, Pa.—Angelo Antonacci thinks the Indians had the right idea. He went deer hunting in the morning with a bow and arrow and returned at night with a doe.

Philadelphia—George Ruch, grocer, is opposed to being help up. A few weeks ago some fellows tried it and Ruch went them running under a barrage of canned goods and nice, firm potatoes. Holdup men came back yesterday. Ruch decided it was a waste of vegetables to throw at them so he took their pistol and chased them. "I'd have shot 'em," he explained, "only their gun wasn't any good."

London—Sir Thomas Lipton, who made a fortune in tea, has a verse for a business motto. His autobiography, just published, reveals that his belief was: "The man who on his trade relies must either bust or advertise."

Buchanan, W. Va.—Chums of Marvin Marsh, 17, dared him to ride his bicycle backwards down main street. It was Sunday. Officers seeing the stunt decided Marvin's actions was not befitting the sabbath and arrested him.

UNIQUE ADVERTISING AROUSES INTEREST

LOCAL AGENT, CHARLES HESTER IS EMBARRASSED WITH QUESTIONS

Considerable speculation was aroused here today by the appearance around town and along automobile row of posters, streamers and placards bearing the advice to "Keep Your Eye on Chevrolet."

What this leading manufacturer plans in the way of a follow-up to this preliminary announcement could not be learned from Charles Hester of the Hester & Son of 323 West Court St. local dealers.

"Tell any of your readers interested," Mr. Hester said "to watch Friday 4th edition of your newspaper for any further details. I can't tell you any more just now."

"We have done a fine business during the past twelve months, and throughout the country the Chevrolet six is leading, every other make in registrations. Yet, good as that showing is, we expect to do better during the coming months. Just keep your eyes on Chevrolet," Mr. Hester concluded.

CONGRESSIONAL VOTE ON PROHIBITION IS NOW IN THE OFFING

the opinion that the prohibition question should be disposed of as early as possible to make way for economic issues. Rainey has always voted dry, but favors a referendum on the 18th amendment.

"What I am trying to do," the Illinois veteran said, "is to attract the attention of the people to the economic issues."

He stressed that he was speaking, "only for myself."

Rainey's statement followed that by Representative Snell of New York, Republican speakership nominee, another dry, who said yesterday, "we will have to face the prohibition issues at the coming session."

The New Yorker also said that where any substantial House group wanted a vote on any question before the people, including that on prohibition, he would make efforts as the leader of the party to help them to obtain it.

Representative Linthicum of Maryland, the Democratic chairman of the wet bloc, and representative Laguardia, Independent Republican of New York, also expects the House to vote on the question.

With the wet bloc numbering about 170 members and the Republicans generally favoring a rule which will permit a vote on prohibition, it appears almost certain some action will be taken.

Meanwhile, the National Prohibition Board of Strategy reported that more than 25,000 dimes were scooped out of one day's mail as the first cash returns from the dry group's campaign for "dry dimes to beat wet dollars."

WASHINGTON C. H. GETS DRESSED UP FOR CHRISTMAS

East, with one strand across East street, at The Dayton Power and Light Company plant.

The lights will be turned on as soon as they are installed, which under present plans, will be late this week or first of next.

Some little delay in erecting the lights has been occasioned by the heavy demand for the new type of light socket used in the strands, and it was indicated Wednesday that these might not arrive until Saturday.

With the addition of much greenery and other decorations to be added by some of the stores, about the front of the buildings, and the possible installation of evergreen trees in the sidewalks, the uptown section of the city will present the most attractive Christmas appearance in its history.

Never before have the leading stores of the city been more beautiful in their Christmas decorations, and it will be a genuine treat to old and young in all walks of life to visit them and view the uptown district while the decorations are up.

Washington C. H. merchants have large stocks of Christmas goods which should attract Christmas buyers from a wide radius outside of Fayette county, and hold the home trade in its entirety.

Not only are the stocks of gift goods complete in the Washington C. H. stores, but the prices are invariably as low or lower than will be found elsewhere.

By the end of this week all decorations should be in place, both inside and outside of the stores, if all material arrives on time, and even Old Santa himself may pay a visit to the city within a short time, to greet the kiddies and give assurance of a wonderful Christmas that is in store for humanity in general.

OPENING AT STUTSON'S

The Frank L. Stutson Co. is extending an invitation to the public to attend the Christmas opening at the store Thursday evening. An attractive musical program has been arranged and the doors of the big store will be thrown open at 7:30.

James Keefe, baritone, who was formerly with the Al. G. Fields Minstrels, and Walter Shoop, of Sabina, the popular accordion player, who made such a hit in a former entertainment at the Stutson Store, will furnish music throughout the evening.

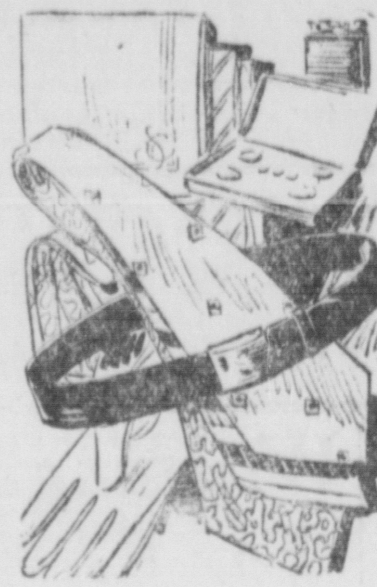

This will be purely a display of Christmas merchandise in the setting of elaborate Christmas decorations. There will be no sales and the entire evening one of entertainment and sociability.

MINISTERS HOLD MONTHLY SESSION

The Fayette Ministerial Association held its monthly session in the First Baptist Church, Thursday, with a good attendance of ministers from throughout the county.

After discussing matters pertaining to the welfare of Fayette county, the theme of the meeting was then introduced by Rev. Glenn, of Bloomingburg, and general discussion followed. The theme was "Modern World Conditions as Related to the Coming Kingdom of Christ."

The theme of the next meeting was announced as "The Bible School And Its Relations to the Church," which is to be introduced by Rev. J. Stanley Mitchell.

PLAIN SPOKEN SOLONS MUST USE DISCRETION WITH WOMAN IN SENATE

Members of Upper House Now Will Have to Accuse Themselves to Presence of Feminine Colleague.

Mrs. Hattie Caraway

By BONITA WITT

Washington, D. C.—Senatorial graybeards are having a difficult time accustoming themselves to the realization that the incoming senate will have a feminine member, Mrs. Hattie Caraway. Practically speaking, she is the first woman senator, since the appointment of Mrs. Rebecca Felton of Georgia, in 1922, was only a courtesy affair and Mrs. Felton served only one day.

Accommodations will have to be arranged for her in the senate, and it is predicted that some of the senators who mince no words in their speeches, will tone them down out of deference to the "lady from Arkansas."

Precedent in Senate

Although in the house of representatives it has become almost customary for the wife of a deceased congressman to succeed him, this practice has not been followed in the senate. Mrs. Caraway serves by appointment until the special election in January, in which she virtually is assured of election for the term expiring Mar. 4, 1933.

Mrs. Caraway is no stranger to Washington. From 1913-1921, when her late husband, Thaddeus Caraway, served in the lower house, prior to going to the senate, and throughout his years in the upper chamber, she was his constant companion. Although Mrs. Caraway was active during her husband's campaigns, she left the speech-making to him. Washingtonians never have heard her talk on a political subject in public, yet she frequently has entertained the members of the senate ladies' luncheon clubs with little speeches.

An Attractive Woman

Mrs. Caraway is an attractive dark blonde in her early fifties. Her eyes are twinkling and she is noted in congressional circles for the brilliance of her mind. Mrs. Caraway is the mother of three sons, Paul, 26; Forrest, 23, both West Point graduates, now stationed at Washington, and Robert, 16, who attends school in Washington.

Charity work has claimed a large portion of her time and Mrs. Caraway is expected to carry on the work with ex-service men which interested her husband so deeply. Thousands of cases of veterans seeking aid were handled in his office.

At present Mrs. Caraway still is too bewildered by the sudden death of her husband, whom she married 29 years ago, to have made any plans for her senatorial career. She appreciates the honor which has been bestowed upon her, but the loss of her husband robs it of the feeling which it otherwise would create.

Great Britain in 1929 imported $120,000,000 worth of eggs and poultry.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE DELIVERED AT HI AUDITORIUM

DISTINGUISHED ILLINOIS JURIST DELIVERS LECTURE ON TUESDAY EVENING

At the high school auditorium Tuesday evening, December 1, Judge Frederick C. Hill, C. S., of Clinton, Illinois, member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, delivered to an appreciative audience, a lecture on Christian Science.

He was accorded the closest attention throughout the able lecture.

Judge Hill said, in part: "There is a substantial conviction in the thoughts of normal individuals that it is right to be healthy and to be happy; and human endeavor, is very largely directed toward the attainment of these desirable ends."

The basic foundation upon which government rests is the fact that mankind is endowed with the right of liberty and the pursuit of happiness. These fundamentals have been designated and named "man's unalienable rights";

and civil law has decreed that the enjoyment of these rights shall not be limited, abridged, or denied without due process of law.

A survey of the conditions surrounding mankind will disclose the fact that many individuals are sick and unhappy; others are struggling with poverty and lack; large numbers are not enjoying liberty of mind or body. It will be discovered that great masses are not successfully engaged in the pursuit of happiness. The amazing fact is the discovery that these individuals have not been deprived of their natural, sacred rights through "due process of law." These distressing penalties are self-imposed through erroneous thinking; and they have utterly failed to discover that obedience to the fundamental order of right thinking will establish and assure the enjoyment of these rights.

In this discussion it is our purpose to direct attention to the fact that there is a fundamental law of man's being, and that the study and application of the teachings of Christian Science furnish abundant proof of that law.

The fact that man has a conscious existence, separate from his bodily form, is evidenced by the declaration of Moses to the children of Israel, "Man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of The Lord doth man live." And this fact was further affirmed by Christ Jesus, when in the hour of his temptation he said, "It is written, That man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God." It may be rightly assumed that the "word of God" is the law of God; and further, that man's true being unfolds in exact proportion to his knowledge of, and conformity to, this law.

CONCLUSION

The facts, the logic, and the arguments advanced may not be accepted by all. Some may ask, "Do you believe that erroneous thinking produces disease, and that right thinking heals?" There is no room for doubt or argument. The fact remains as stated. Through the process of right thinking, hundreds, thousands, and hundreds of thousands of reputable people, from every country of the civilized world are gladly testifying to the healing of the body through the transformation and regeneration as taught and applied in Christian Science.

The real purpose of this lecture is to emphasize the fact that God is; and that man lives and has his being through the intelligent operation of law and order. In proportion as every individual habitually struggles to know and to understand God and to be obedient to His laws, that struggle and that obedience will bring into human experience the highest degree of human liberty. It will heal the sick and reform the sinner. It will promote a full understanding of man's "unalienable rights" and enable everyone who will follow obediently to enjoy the highest degree of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." It will bring into human consciousness, as a vital living reality, man's immortality.

Congress

Next Monday a new Congress convenes at the nation's capital, facing not only an opportunity for the enactment of constructive legislation such as has been faced by few Congresses, but the necessity for the enactment of such legislation as well as the necessity for the repeal of a vast amount of law, now on the statute books which a changed world has made obsolete.

No fair minded citizen contends that there is not much to be considered regarding our prohibition laws but all, save a few ultra radicals among the wets and dries, realize that there are vastly more important problems to consider at the present time.

Not only do the people of the United States regard the convening of the new Congress as an event of great moment. The peoples of the whole world are looking to Congress and upon its action depends the recovery of the world's economic conditions.

Politically the House of Congress will be democratic, the senate will be very close, the progressive element holding the balance of power while, of course, the executive branch is republican.

All of which means that one of two results will follow—either Congress, the executive joining with his approval, will enact needed legislation or a hopeless deadlock will result.

Which result is the final outcome of this long anticipated session of Congress, depends upon whether the House, the Senate and the Executive are willing to suspend the game of politics until real work is done, brave enough to rise to the needs of the time, ignore the groups clamoring for special favor and regard their duty as nation wide and world wide instead of restricted to the narrow confines of their districts.

Never was so much expected of any Congress and never has any Congress been given more praise than this one will receive if it rises to the opportunity presented and no Congress has ever been censured more than this one will be if it fails.

It will be bombarded by groups with quack cure alls and unsound proposals, it will be attacked fore and aft by selfish interests. All such should be ignored. Congress cannot evade its responsibility.

President Hoover can be a help or a hindrance to progressive legislative enactment. His veto power is a formidable weapon. Congress can help or hinder President Hoover. It is controlled by those politically opposed to him. If either tries to shift responsibility, it will be a disaster. If both stand straight and toe the mark it will be a blessing.

Airminded Capital

No American industry, unless it may be the radio, has had such large sums of capital made available to it so early in its commercial development as has aviation.

The difficulties which the pioneers in the automobile industry had in raising such amounts as five thousand dollars indicates the truth of this statement. An airplane company almost without tangible prospects has a better chance to attract capital now than the most promising automobile manufacturer had in nineteen hundred and nine.

Most surprising, to many, is the knowledge that the investors of today have more confidence in the future of aeronautics than capitalists twenty years ago had in the money-making possibilities of automobile manufacturing. The northeastern part of the United States allowed the automobile industry to drift West because eastern bankers and investors preferred railroad and street car stocks and bonds.

Powerful interests have allied themselves with aviation to an extent which they had not done in the automobile industry ten years after its success appeared certain. And the small investor is showing more confidence.

But it is with some justification that a New York investment house warns its clients against too heavy investment in airplane factories. With virtually unlimited capital available there is the possibility of overexpansion.

REFORMING THE LEAGUE IS NOW URGED

International Police Force Seen as Only Hope with Actual Disarmament Says Iowan

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

Washington, Dec. 2.—"I never did think much of the League of Nations," said Senator Smith W. Brookhart, looking up from the paper in which he had been reading an account of Geneva's latest activities in connection with the Manchurian situation.

That is to say, always considered it impossible," he added. "The Kellogg act," continued he Iowa law-maker, "is different. It doesn't undertake to accomplish anything definite. It merely declares war to be a crime, but doesn't promise to prevent wars."

"Japan, if she grabs Manchuria, has admitted in advance that she's a criminal."

"That's worth knowing."

"It's worth other nations' while to know it and it's worth while to have Japan know that they know it."

The Senator pook-hoohed the idea that there can be any justification for the policy the Japanese have pursued in Manchuria.

"They see how they can make money there," he said, "so they want it."

"The League of Nations assumed the job of preventing such performances. If it can't do it, it may just as well be disbanded."

"My opinion is that it's on its last legs now, on its present basis. Its one hope lies in reorganization, with what it was obvious, from the first, that it would have to have in order to have the slightest attention paid to it in any real emergency—an international police force, strong enough to enforce league decisions."

Would not this have to be a very large and strong police force?

"It would, indeed," agreed the senator, "unless the nations disarm."

"They're going to hold a disarmament conference in two or three months, you know," he confided. "Maybe they actually will disarm as a result of it. Anyone who chooses is at liberty to believe so. As for myself, I'm scarcely that optimistic."

"Nevertheless, it's a theoretical possibility."

"Is it a supposition on which you'd favor American membership in the league?" I asked the Iowan.

"It is not," said the senator promptly. "Not while the present international economic set-up continues."

"Never, never will I vote for a world super-government until after there has been a world economic revolution."

The present economic set-up is

Poetry For Today

THIS AND THAT

There is always a question mark under the hat—
Why did we do this and not do that?
Questioning, questioning, all life long.

The questions are rifting the sweet of the song.

We want to be right and we want to be true;
We want to be sure in the things we do;
But there's always a matter of this and that

Haunting us, taunting us under the hat.

Why did we ever do that and not this?

There's something we've lost, there's something we miss:
We cannot be certain, we never are sure,
We must just keep on trying and strive to endure.

Words we could say after saying is past,
Deeds we could do at the first, not the last;

Always there's something like this and like that
To worry and hurry us under the hat.

—Baltimore Sun.

International 'hen'

And how about America? Even though not included in the League of Nations, is she not included in the existing economic set-up?

"It's international, all right," acquiesced the senator.

"Yes, and we are included in it but we ought not to be and we needn't have been but for rank mismanagement."

"We ought to be immensely prosperous."

"So far as we're concerned, it's ridiculous to say that the war caused the depression. Heaven knows we profited enough out of it."

"But as for the League of Nations," concluded the Iowan, "we're more influential out of it than we would be in it anyway."

"In it we would count for only one vote."

"Out of it we count up to our full strength, for whatever use we may see fit to make of it."

"When the Manchurian row started I was under the impression, from the tone of our diplomacy, that that we were going to use it peacefully, of course—to frown down Japan's grab."

"I guess I was mistaken."

In Ohio History

High Spots

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

The canalization of the Ohio river for greater efficiency in transportation was proposed as early as 1783. A memorial with such a suggestion was read before the continental congress on July 4 of that year, but nothing was done about it. The petitioner was Christopher Colles, an able and energetic engineer, native of Ireland, who had emigrated to America when he was 27 years old. He was 45 when he prepared the memorial.

What he had in mind was the obstacle of the falls near Louisville, which made navigation dangerous except at flood stages of the river. Kentucky was being rapidly settled and he called attention to the fact that the Kentucky river, which could be expected to bring down a large and increasing burden of water traffic, poured into the Ohio above the falls. With a safe and always safe way of negotiating the rapids above Louisville, the Ohio would be navigable at all seasons from Fort Pitt to the ocean.

What he wished was a grant of a considerable tract of land at the falls in consideration of which he would engage to organize a company with ample capital to construct locks and to operate a canal at the falls, and to get his compensation from tolls charged to vessel owners using it. He also asked legislation authorizing the organization of his company.

Just before the revolution he drew plans for a reservoir to supply New York City with water, to be brought in by pipes from outside sources. It was well received, but the war arrested proceedings. He was the original projector of the Erie canal, but in this, as well as other large engineering projects, he was far ahead of his times.

He established a general store in New York City, did chemical and scientific work, lectured on scientific subjects and calculated astronomical movements and furnished data for almanacs. Honest, able and energetic, he was universally liked, though looked upon as a dreamer, and was always in hard financial straits.

BUY, BUY, BLUES!

By WILLIAM GAINES

NEW YORK—Jan Smeterlin, New York pianist, met the English girl he was to marry at a house party in Austria.

The Polish artist decided, after 24 hours, that he was madly in love with her. The next time they met, in London, they were made as one, as the saying goes.

Smeterlin had no top hat and he was determined not to get married without one. He went to a shop which rented clothing to thespians and got one for five shillings a day.

The wedding was on a Saturday. Rather than keep the hat over the week-end and be assessed more for it, he put his bride into a cab immediately after the ceremony and the two of them went to the shop to return the headgear.

Smeterlin laughs at life, whatever it offers. "It is too short to get sentimental over it," he says.

BIG FISH YARN

Henry M. Neely, a master of ceremonies, spent every winter for four years cruising to far corners of the earth as a wireless operator. Each spring he would quit the expedition ships upon their return, board his own boat and spend the warm months cruising and writing stories.

In addition to writing fiction and features for a number of magazines, Neely is a former newspaper publisher, musician and dramatic critic.

His last expedition was eight months in the Antarctic aboard the Norwegian whaler, Bombay. The ship was anchored for four months at Deception Island.

Neely says the eight months' hunt netted 3,000 whales which sold for $1,000,000 in Liverpool.

"The taste and smell of whale was in everything we ate aboard ship," he says. "The boat became covered inside and out with a thick coating of whale grease."

There is an age-old belief that seafaring folk don't go in much for agriculture, but husbandry of a sort is another hobby of Neely's.

He once made a scientific investigation of farm conditions in the terests amicably, because Rolfe wanted to produce in the east while Lasky thought the west coast was better for film making.

Rolfe's early successes laid a good part of the foundation for one of the biggest producing companies of today, but when high finance began to invade the picture field he stepped out.

He had begun his musical career at the age of 11; a boy prodigy tooting a trumpet in Europe. So he turned again to music and seems to have got along pretty well.

THE Browning Club convened at the Federated club room, Tuesday evening, with a large attendance of members and guests.

Mrs. Estella K. Blackmer, president, conducted the business of the evening—the club voted to buy a Christmas Seal Bond, and also to make a contribution to the Mt. Logan Sanatorium at Chillicothe.

The program of the evening was presented by the Art Department, and a quotation from Tolstoy was an index to the excellent papers—"Art is the power to convey the noblest emotion by means of words, music, color or form: the means of making people feel truth and beauty through their senses."

The first paper, "From Flat Roofs to Towers," by Mrs. Dollie K. Willis, was descriptive of the change in American architecture from the lower buildings of the past to the marvelous steel structured skyscrapers of the present. Recent buildings erected in New York City were given as notable illustrations.

Mrs. Ada M. Lanum, in the second paper of the evening, "Modernistic Art," explained in an interesting manner some of the off-time mysticisms of present day pictures, enabling one to better comprehend their meaning.

The prevailing thought of a certain period is often reflected in its art.

Mrs. Anna Bush Coffman, in the third paper of the evening, "The Progress of Photography," presented in a comprehensive way the very rapid development of this popular art, and particularly the beauty and attractiveness of colored photography. Many personal descriptions of recent pictures were given.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Peterson were host and hostess to nearly forty members of the Men's and Women's Bible classes of the First Baptist church, Tuesday evening, for a most interesting and enjoyable meeting. They were assisted in the entertaining by Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Bishop and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Merritt.

The business sessions were conducted separately, each class holding the election of officers. Mr. Charles Wall was chosen president of the Men's class, Mr. Myers Kimmey, vice president, Mr. Robert Caplinger, secretary-treasurer, Mr. J. M. Kay, teacher, and Mr. John Case, Sr., assistant teacher. In the women's election, Mrs. Charles Wall was made president, Mrs. Arthur McCoy, vice president, Mrs.

O. T. Mosshager, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Harry Townsley, teacher.

A delightful social hour followed and included an entertaining little program. Miss Mary Elizabeth Wood gave a piano solo and Irene Rossi a reading, both numbers encored. Several amusing contests preceded the serving of very tempting refreshments.

St. Andrew's Episcopal Guild was entertained Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Anna Bell for the regular meeting and the annual election of officers. Mrs. Kerna Thompson, president, was in the chair and the election related the present officers for another year. Besides Mrs. Thompson, the officials are Mrs. E. L. Dice, vice president, Mrs. George A. Robinson, treasurer, and Mrs. Sherrell Clark, secretary.

There was a discussion of matters of interest to the Guild followed by a social hour and the serving of delicious refreshments. Miss Bell used suggestions of the hostess in decorating her home.

Miss Hattie Pinkerton's class of the First Presbyterian Sunday School was entertained at the home of Miss Eleanor Allen, Tuesday evening. Miss Helen Simons, class president, presided over the business session which was taken up with a discussion of Christmas plans. Miss Allen was made chairman of the committee.

A called meeting of the class to complete Christmas arrangements will be held December 15 at the home of Miss Peggy Devins.

A social hour followed the meeting, the hostess assisted in serving very delicious refreshments by her mother, Mrs. Howard Allen, and aunt, Mrs. Ruth Masters.

The Cherry Hill Parent-Teacher Association met Tuesday evening at the school building for the December business meeting and an especially good program. Mr. P. E. Bacon, president, presided and read a letter from Mrs. Milton H. Katz, health seal chairman, in regard to the seal work. A report from the membership committee showed an enrollment of a hundred and thirty-three members.

Mrs. Clifford Foster was in charge of the evening's program and presented Mrs. Walter E. Green, soprano, in two lovely numbers—"Sweet Mystery of Life" and "That Little Damsel." Miss Florence Jones played the piano accompaniment.

THE SOCIAL ELITE

Girl Reporter Draws Word Picture of Leaders of "Four Hundred" Set

By ETHELDA BEDFORD
New York.—Gotham society has no more talented and sociable member than Mrs. Howard Phipps—and certainly it has none more firmly rooted in its ranks.

While Mrs. Phipps is one of the new matrons she is a favorite of both the debutante and the younger married circles. You see her one afternoon at a debutante tea—and the next playing backgammon at the old Colony Club, of which she is a member. She is an active member, too, of the Junior League.

Mrs. Howard Phipps

Only recently this gracious daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore H. Price, of Park Avenue, became divers entitled, "When Grace Cards Come Home." Principal Dwight B. Ireland spoke to the organization on The Grading System used in the local schools, an informal address giving the parents a closer understanding of the system employed.

The first grade pupils, taught by Miss Beane, have given a great deal of interest and diligent labor to an Indian project, including study of Indiana, transforming the classroom into an Indian village and weaving an Indian rug. The climax of the study was an original playlet, presented at the P. T. A. meeting.

Taking part in the entertaining production were Stanley Mark, Mary Kathryn Bush, Doris Post, Joan Wilson, Jimmy Wyatt, Bobby Allen, Betty Jean Mann, Jane Bryant, Pauline Lucas, Arlene Smith, Vernon Dowler, Sammie Wilson, Harold Lindsay, Forest Rhodes, Bobby Slichter, Gerald Paul, Paul Shoults, Junior Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Jefferson of Bloomingburg entertained a delightful little dinner, Monday evening. The table, seating eight, was centered with a bouquet of lovely chrysanthemums. The utmost pleasure attended the dinner and prevailed throughout the evening following.

Included were Rev. and Mrs. John Glenn and son, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hains, Mrs. Sarepta Short, Mrs. Maude Howland and Mr. M. L. Dickey.

Dr. and Mrs. Clayton V. Lanum and Dr. A. M. Bush are spending Wednesday and Thursday in Cincinnati to attend the State Dental Association meeting at the Netherland Plaza Hotel.

Mrs. Herbert C. Campbell, Mrs. Condon Campbell and little son, Charles William, Mrs. Carey Honkle and Mrs. Nevin Ricketts made up a motoring party in Columbus, Wednesday.

Dr. C. W. Sadders spend Wednesday in Cincinnati to attend the State Dental Association meeting, at the Netherland Plaza.

Mrs. J. Herbert Chapman left Wednesday morning for Detroit, Mich., for a few days' visit with her daughter, Miss Georgia Prugh Chapman at the Henry Ford Nurses Training School. Mr. Chapman motored her to Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Barnett, who have made the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Barnett, headquarters for five weeks of visiting in this city, Cincinnati, Toledo, Chillicothe and Wilmington, left Wednesday for their home in Shawnee, Okla.

Mrs. Bert and Matson has returned from a week's visit with Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Oldham, in Columbus.

the bride of Mr. Phipps. And, may be you don't think their engagement and marriage, which followed only a few weeks later, didn't cause lots of chatting over the tea cups!

Quite a "Catch"
The news that the name of "Howard Phipps"—one of Manhattan's wealthiest and most eligible—was to be removed from the list of the supposed confirmed bachelors came as a great surprise.

While Mrs. Phipps enjoyed several seasons as Miss Marriet Dyer Price she had shown much interest in social work and club activities. She has many talents, and her friends expected her to go in for a career at any time. Then her engagement was announced—and to the son of one of the oldest and most aristocratic families in all New York!

Mrs. Phipps is 30—and her husband is 29 years her senior. She is tall, slim, graceful and goes in for simplicity both in attire and manner. Her wedding—which took place in the beautiful drawing room of her parents' Park Avenue residence—included only close friends and relatives, and was particularly effective because of its noticeable lack of frills.

Daughter of Cotton King
The career of Mrs. Phipps' father is known as one of the most thrilling and colorful in all Wall Street. He once was known as "the cotton king." He made millions and lost them, made them again. She is very fond of her father and never tires of his colorful stories, of his failures and triumphs.

She is a niece, on her father's side, of Mr. and Mrs. Walter W. Price, whose names come high on the list of the "right people." The Dyers originally hail from Virginia.

Her mother, the former Harriet Eaganis Dyer, is the daughter of the late General Alexander B. Dyer, U. S. A., who was chief of ordnance during the Civil War.

Mrs. Phipps has much in common with her husband, other than millionaire ancestors. They both like sports and belong to numerous clubs. They are particularly fond of polo. (Mr. Phipps' nephews include those two well-known polo players, Raymond and Winston Guest.)

Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Ford motored to Cincinnati Wednesday to attend the Ohio Dental Association at the Netherlands Plaza.

Mr. Ormand Dewey left Tuesday on a business trip through Kentucky in the interest of the Inskip Mfg. Co. Mrs. Dewey motored with him for the ten days which he expects to be in Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner L. South and leave Thursday for a few days' visit with friends in Chicago.

Charles Wendell Mitchem, son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Mitchem, has recovered from a several weeks' illness and resumed his school studies Wednesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Smoots motored down from Mt. Vernon, Wednesday, for a couple of days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Hoy O. Simons.

Mrs. Harry Hicks, Mrs. Richard Ramsey, Mrs. Leo Burke, Mrs. W. J. Smith and Miss Bess Dean made up a motoring party in Columbus, Tuesday.

Mrs. George W. Greene has returned from a several weeks' visit with relatives in Waterbury, Conn., and will remain here for a short time before leaving for her home in San Diego, California.

Mr. E. K. Patch has returned to Chicago after a visit at the home of his nephew, Mr. Andy Gidding. Mr. C. M. Blue, of South Plymouth, who also teaches in Chicago, accompanied him after a brief visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Browning were motoring visitors in Columbus, Wednesday.

Misses Dell and Nell Johnson have returned from a visit over Thanksgiving with their brother, Mr. Morgan Johnson, and family, in Columbus.

LIVING AND LOVING

BY VIRGINIA LEE

HAVEN'T WE, in this modern day and age, and in this country, yet arrived at the point where we can labor at whatever work to which necessity or our inclinations lead us without feeling that we are "lowering" ourselves—God save the mark!

"DEAR MISS LEE: I am in love with a fellow my own age. We both have the same amount of education. He is going to college and I'm in training, but—"

"He has money and I haven't. Consequently I have to work for my education, and because I could not get a business position I have to do housework. He lives next door and I'm friendly with his sister. But, dear Miss Lee, although our family is much older than his, we have just as good social standing, and because my father has lost his money and I'm working, I feel so beneath him."

"Is it wrong for me to care for him? Should I, because I'm just a servant, let him go? Believe me, he isn't a 'rah, rah' boy, but steady, etc., and I care for him heaps. Please tell me what to do, and do you think he will be ashamed of me?"

Your own attitude toward your position will most likely be the one accepted by your friends, Dale, including the boy friend. If you yourself feel that you are degraded by doing housework, you are quite apt to make others feel so, too.

But if you assume that your job is a dignified and worthy one, and do it as well as you know how, and as a matter of course, few will question the matter. I know of a young girl who put herself thru college working for a young married couple. She now has a position more to her liking and paying better, but she visits the young people she worked for and is considered a friend of the family. She moved in the same social circle. They or their friends were quite apt to meet her in formal dress at some evening party after working hours. So far as I know no one snubbed her because she found she could earn her way in that fashion better than by toiling in an office or waiting table at a boarding house.

And if they did, I imagine she knew how to meet such a situation—or ignore it, and stand upon her dignity. All persons who merit her friendship took her way of earning her living as a matter of course, and she could afford to ignore or laugh at the rest. You do the same. If your boy friend is worth loving he will honor you for your pluck instead of being ashamed of you.

Dear Diary.

Story of a Girl who went to New York for Fame and Fortune
By ETHELDA BEDFORD
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION, INC.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT.
DEAR DIARY: "Nate—who is the girl in the silver frame—on the table there? ... Tell me—about her."

He sighed, as if he were displeased. "Tell me—about her," I repeated. "I want to know—she's awfully pretty."

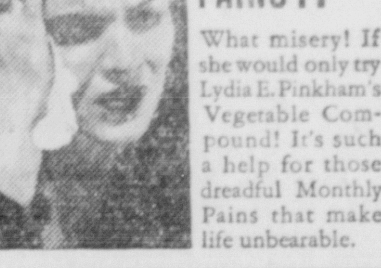

His eyes sort of narrowed. Diary, and he looked straight at me ... very near me ... as I was still standing on top of the little tapestry stool.

"Why—talk?"

"Oh—why—why not?"

"Why not?"

"Why not?" and the lightness of my voice even surprised me. "I—don't know why not—"

SUFFERED MONTHLY PAINS..

What misery! If she would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound! It's such a help for those dreadful Monthly Pains that make life unbearable.

"Where—come where—you mean here to your apartment tonight?" "No—no—I mean, why did you come to New York?"

"Oh Nate," I said, "you know why ... I've told you before." "I'm sorry, dearest—that I frightened you—wanting to kiss you ..."

"To kiss me—"

He shook his head again—as if he were pitying me for being sweet and dumb. A sort of twisted smile played about his lips.

WEDNESDAY MORNING COLDEST TO DATE

Wednesday morning was the coldest of the season to-date, the official registration being 18 degrees, or two degrees lower than the preceding cold snap which touched 20 above zero.

The cold was accompanied by clear skies and no breeze, with the result that by ten o'clock the mercury was climbing back up in the thirties, with prospects of warmer Thursday.

SECRET DEAL FOR PURCHASE OF LAND FOR $325,000 FACING BY INJUNCTION

Youngstown, O., Dec. 2.—(P)—Payment of $100,000 on a secret deal by which the city board of control bought a property from Armour and Company for street widening, at a price of $325,000 was revealed today as attorneys prepared to take depositions in an injunction suit against the deal.

The suit also attacks the purpose of other land from Swift and Company for $98,000.

Assistant law director Hugh Wickham today revealed that efforts were made yesterday to stop payment on checks to Armour and Company for $100,000 but that the checks already had been cashed. Reporters since Monday have been unable to locate Director Carl Armstrong, members of the board of control along with Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan and Finance Director James E. Jones.

Jones said the properties were bought because the prices were reasonable and they would be expensive. Heffernan, however, issued a vitriolic statement saying that the deal of Jones for mayor in the recent election was a vote against an economy administration, and that he would spend "all the city money I can" before he leaves office January 1.

In the election campaign Heffernan backed Jones, who was defeated by Mary E. Moore.

The injunction suit was filed by Mrs. Thomas Farrell, whose husband supported Moore for mayor, and is a bitter political enemy of Heffernan.

The fact that the deal was made without authorization by city council has led to questions of its legality.

JAPANESE DEMANDS INCREASED; MANCHURIAN PEACE FADES

China states.

"It is not sufficient that the Chinese should merely withdraw their troops within the Great Wall. China must also be withdrawn."

Japan also proposes that the independent Chinese government set up at Mukden under Japanese auspices, with Yuan Chih-Kai at its head, shall control the neutral zone after the withdrawals.

Shanghai, Dec. 2.—(P)—Dispatches from Harbin, Manchuria, said a detachment of the cavalry of general Mah Chan-Shan clashed today southwest of Hailun with Japanese forces and was driving them back.

The action was described as part of a counterattack by General May to recapture Tsitsihar, from which his army was driven in mid-November by the Japanese.

Hailun is General Mah's birthplace and he retired there after his fight from Tsitsihar. Frequent reports have said he was reorganizing his army there more than 200 miles east of its former position.

Japanese military authorities in that area sent back a call for airplanes and artillery, the dispatches said.

BOUGHT SUGAR STOCK

Disclosure that Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania, top, and Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, below, both had made "paper profits" on sugar stock they purchased on credit in 1928 have brought statements from both senators that the transactions were purely private matters. Testimony was given before the senate lobby committee in Washington that in 1929 sugar interests from whom the stock was acquired became active in advocating a higher sugar tariff.

DEATH IS MYSTERY

London, O., Dec. 2.—(P)—The death of Herman Shridder, 57, London prison farm guard, who had not been seen since starting a weeks vacation last Friday, was being investigated today by Coroner J. T. Baber, the coroner, however, said he believed death was due to natural causes.

Shridder, whose body was found in bed at his home last night, apparently had been dead about five days, Baber said. Shridder had locked the doors of his house and nothing appeared disturbed.

Mrs. Irene Aughtman, who, according to police, was Shridder's housekeeper, left several days ago to visit relatives at Galion.

Shridder is survived by his estranged widow and a daughter, Miss Rowena, of London; two brothers, Whitmore of New Lexington and Oscar of Newark, and two sisters, Mrs. Stella Holliday, Pleasantville, O.; and Mrs. Daisy Wolfe, Lancaster.

COXEY IN CAPITAL WAITING MARCHERS

Washington, Dec. 2.—(P)—The general of "Coxey's army" is back in Washington—not in jail as in 94 but in the new Willard Hotel—insistent that demonstrators be treated properly.

While unconnected with new marches upon the capital, Jacob S. Coxey, Sr., is sympathetic. And he is convinced of the efficacy of demonstrations. "I won out," he argued.

Coxey, representing Massillon, Ohio, as mayor-elect, now wants congress to make the $3,400,000,000 in outstanding colder bonus insurance certificates legal tender, cashable within 30 days.

Coxey today laid before Theodore Joslin, one of President Hoover's secretaries, a plan for improving the economic situation.

Coxey, mayor-elect of Massillon, Ohio suggested what he called a "new legal tender plan" in which the government would issue money without the support of the customary gold backing, and with it would pay additional bonus money to ex-service men.

DICTATOR FOR FOOD LOOMS IN GERMANY

Berlin, Dec. 2.—(P)—Appointment of a "food dictator" for Germany was forecast in government circles today.

No definite date has been set for the appointment, but it was said the official would probably come from the ministry of economics and be empowered automatically to reduce wages and costs of industrial and food products. It was said, to prevent wage cuts in factories unless a similar saving were passed along to the consumer.

TOASTMASTERS HEAR INTERESTING DEBATE

The Toastmasters Club, following their weekly dinner at the Cherry Hotel, Tuesday night, enjoyed a very interesting and spirited debate between John Weade, Uniontown trustee, and Charles Schwartz of this city.

The debate was on liquor traffic as authorized in Ontario, Canada and prohibition as it is in the United States, with Weade arguing for the government control and system now observed in Ontario, and with Schwartz arguing in favor of the prohibition as adopted in the U. S.

Both men had spent sometime in gathering statistics and facts regarding their respective sides to the question, and both presented their respective sides most convincingly.

There were no judges, and the question was not formally decided, but the toastmasters left, feeling that they knew just a little more about the most question of prohibition and government controlled liquor traffic.

Clark Pennyl, chairman of the entertainment committee, introduced the debaters.

PLEA MADE FOR TOM MOONEY

A spectator remarked as he left that it was too bad Mooney might have to wait three months to know his fate.

"What's three months?" asked the bailiff, "to a man who has been in jail for 15 years?"

The arguments for the pardon stood out in sharp contrast. Walker spoke dramatically. Walsh, 67 years old, who has studied the Mooney case more than a dozen years, said calmly over and over again that Frank C. Oxman and John MacDonald, key witnesses in the conviction of Mooney, were proven perjurers.

They traced the history of the case from 2:06 p. m., July 22, 1916, to date. His associates then took up the plea.

Although the mayor of New York was present as an attorney, and not in his official capacity, Governor Rolph addressed him as "Your Honor."

Suffering from a severe cold, Walker started at a slower pace than his custom, but after the luncheon recess it was a different story.

He plunged immediately into a dramatic plea for Mooney, a "kindly, gentle man, an intelligent man." He pictured Mooney convicted of murder and once sentenced to die on perjured testimony. Looking straight at Governor Rolph, in measured tones, Walker said:

"You have the power. We have the case. We give you the case."

Not a sound penetrated the small courtroom but the mayor's voice as he half turned toward Mrs. Mary Mooney, the prisoner's 83-year-old mother, who leaned half forward in her chair, eager to hear every word from Walker's lips.

"The sun will go down on California tonight in all its glory and all its splendor," he said slowly. "It will go down tomorrow night and for countless nights to come. One night it will go down when Mother Mooney won't be here. Don't let that unhappy condition exist, that her son be alive and not be there."

KENTUCKY TOBACCO GROWERS IN REVOLT

The Tobacco Board of Trade, the only agency empowered to close the floors, decided otherwise.

Henderson, Ky., Dec. 2.—(P)—Objections of farmers to low prices for their dark leaf tobacco caused postponement of the opening sale here today after 65,000 pounds had been sold at an average price of about $4 per hundred pounds lower than last year's opening prices.

After the sales had been under way some time, two of the approximately 1,000 farmers who crowded into the Ogden Brothers warehouse told the growers "if they're going to take our tobacco away from us, let's stop this sale."

Loud cheers greeted the statements.

W. H. Ogden, president of the Warehouse company, pleaded with the farmers to consider present economic conditions, but when his remarks apparently had no effect, he ordered the sale postponed until next Monday.

Later it was announced sales on all five floors here would be halted until Monday. There are approximately 680,000 pounds of dark leaf in the floors here, of the same type as that offered at yesterday's opening sale at Owensboro when the farmers halted sales because of low prices.

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec. 2.—(P)—Stocks were stimulated for awhile today by the recommendation for a Canadian railroad wage cut, but slumped in the afternoon when selling was resumed in low priced rails.

News from Ottawa counteracted the Wabash receivership for an hour or so and the market rallied vigorously after heaviness at the opening. Unfavorable action on the Rock Island preferred dividends, negative mid-week trade statistics, a weak bond market and a more gloomy appraisal of some railroad situations contributed to a definite downswing soon after noon, however, and a number of carrier stocks dropped to new lows.

Another important railroad meeting will be held in Chicago next week by leaders of rail workers here. Following action of the Canadian mediation board in recommendation of a 10 per cent wage reduction, it is expected to focus attention on the attitude of American railroad labor with regard to a similar reduction here. Canada's action, it is believed will play an important part in influencing opinion here. Rumors also persisted that some announcement would come out of Washington shortly with bearing on the railroad plea for rate increase.

The sharp rise of the British pound sterling again attracted attention. Sterling's rally which carried to $3.45 1/2 for a maximum gain of 1 1/2 points lost some of its strength in later dealings, but still retained most of the gain.

Buying of sterling bills was reported here and abroad. Other exchanges were little changed.

NEWS BRIEFS FROM WALL STREET

New York, Dec. 2.—(P)—Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. has obtained an order for $1,000,000 worth of transformers and switch gear equipment from the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Powell Crosley, Jr., president of Crosley Radio, said that loss of $60,592 for the six months ended Sept. 30, has been more than offset by profits in October and November, and current orders are such that a small profit for the nine months ended Dec. 31 seems assured.

The Iron Age composite price for finished steel has declined to 2.102 cents a pound after holding for 19 weeks at 2.116 cents, and this average does not take into account the decline of $2 a ton on plates, shapes, and bars at Chicago. Pig iron remains at $14.96 a gross ton and steel scrap at $8.75.

INDUSTRIAL EARNINGS

P. Lorillard Co. today resumed dividends on its common stock with declaration of a quarterly disbursement of 30 cents a share, payable Jan. 2 to stock of record, Dec. 15. The quarterly dividend restored the stock to a $1.20 annual basis. The dividend previously was passed on June 1, 1927.

The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad today deferred action on its semi-annual dividends of $3 on the 6 per cent preferred and $3.50 on the 7 per cent preferred stocks, due at this time.

TO WORK FIFTY MEN DURING COMING WEEK

Under present plans in Union township, fifty men will be given employment under the relief plan, in shifts of 17 working two days each, at $2.50 per day.

Within a short time the relief plan will be taken up in other townships where such relief work is deemed necessary, it was indicated Wednesday.

The first workmen given employment are those who are with out work and have dependents.

WABASH RAILROAD GOES ON ROCKS

The falling off in automobile manufacture and the use of trailers to haul new automobiles on the highway by Detroit manufacturers, cut drastically into the road's revenues.

Gross earnings of the railroad for ten months ending last October 31, were said in the bill of complaint to have been $11,290,000 less than for the same period of 1930 and that the liabilities of the company exceeded the book value of its assets by more than $6,000,000.

STARS GATHERED FOR EAST-WEST GAME

Northwestern's Coach to Lead Mid-west Forces in Shrine Benefit

ONE FROM OHIO STATE

Andy Kerr Colgate Mentor, to Bring East's Aces

Chicago, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern, is actually looking forward with pleasure to a charity football game—the annual East-West contest at San Francisco for the Shriners' crippled children's hospital fund New Year's day.

Charity games cost Northwestern an undisputed claim to the Big Ten title this season when Purdue knocked the Wildcats over last week, along with about $57,000 in cash. The latter loss was marked up when the attendance at the Northwestern-Notre Dame game at Soldier Field, failed to fulfill expectations reducing the Wildcats share of the receipts to around $33,000. Northwestern already had advanced $100,000 to Governor Emerson's relief fund, and had expected to make it up out of the contest.

Hanley will issue invitations Sunday to midwest stars to play against coast and farwest aces in the Shrine game and has under consideration the following: Marchmont Schwartz, halfback and Nardy Hoffman, guard, from Notre-Dame; Bill Hewitt, end and fullback, and Maynard Morrison, center, of Michigan; Charles Miller, center, and Jim Purvis, halfback from Purdue; Jack Riley and Dal Marvill, tackles, from Northwestern; Bob Haubrich, tackle, from Ohio State; and Clarence Munn, guard, from Minnesota. Andy Kerr, Colgate's coach, will select eleven men from the East to hand with Hanley's Selections.

Michigan yesterday elected Ivan Williamson of Bowling Green, O., an All-Big Ten end, to lead its 1932 eleven, and Northwestern will announce its captain for next year at the annual banquet Saturday night. Ernest "Pug" Rentner, one of the country's greatest backs, is expected to be elected. Illinois elected Gil Berry, halfback, last week, and Ohio State named Lew Hinchman, All-Big Ten halfback.

Athens, Dec. 2.—Elden Armbrust, Washington C. H., has received a numerical sweater for his service this season on Ohio University's freshman football squad. Another Washington C. H. boy, Thomas Seyer, has been awarded numerals for service on the freshman squad.

There were 22 yearlings gridders who received sweaters and 25 who were awarded numerals.

back; Walter Camp, tackle. Coach Babe Hollingberry, State's coach, is unique among major coaches in that he has never played college football himself.

ALBIE BOOTH'S GREAT CAREER ENDS IN HOSPITAL COT BUT RECORD STANDS OUT AT YALE

By EDWARD J. NEIL

New York, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Albie Booth, the dynamic mite, is resting in a sanatorium at Wallingford, Conn., today, bound to a hospital cot for perhaps four months. His story book career now only a matter of Yale athletic records.

His is the story of a small-town boy who made good in his own neighborhood. A New Haven high school idol who stepped into Yale's big league, all 145 pounds of him, and instantaneously dominated every football team, football, baseball or basketball, on which he played.

Albie is the greatest broken field runner, the finest leader in Yale's modern football history, a ball-carrying back whose sudden spurges are rivaled only by feats of the gridiron's great pair of redheads, Grange of Illinois and Cagle of Army. Yet in his three sensational years, although he captained two of Yale's major teams—football and basketball—and he was a star on the baseball nine—Albie never "made" an All-American eleven. Always some injury, or some illness, such as the pleurisy and bronchitis that now have ended his Yale career, forced him to the sidelines, stopped him as Ben Tiekner did, just short of the goal.

Yet in his three years in the Yale backfield, Booth probably generated as much publicity as either Grange or Cagle. He had the same spark of inspirational leadership, the dash and spectacular ability to function best in a crisis, the nerve of a winning ball player. No halfback in recent years has ranked ahead of him as a "money" player.

Three highspots blaze through Booth's career, two of them in a pair of magnificent scoring outbursts, the third in his last few minutes of the Harvard-Yale game, last of his career, when he dropped back, just an ordinary ball totter all afternoon, and kicked the field goal that gave the EAs a 3 to 0 victory.

SHAKEUP LOOMS IN BASEBALL AS MAJORS AND MINORS GET INTO REORGANIZATION PLANS

By PAUL MICKELSON

West Baden, Ind., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Mike Sexton's 22-year-old reign as president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues appeared near the end today, engulfed by a sudden campaign to reorganize and rehabilitate the entire organization.

The action to oust him and to install new leadership in the organization of the minor league baseball leagues came last night when the owners decided the time had come for rehabilitation. A committee of three, was appointed to bring the proposal before the formal meeting of the organization, opening today.

Under the plan, a committee would be appointed to make a complete study of the minor league problems and to recommend a new president at a future meeting. Sexton would be retired to the post of honorary president with a pension.

League, and Warren Giles, president of the Rochester Club of the International League.

"Such an action is absolutely necessary if the minor leagues are to endure," said Branch Rickey, of the St. Louis Cardinals, and director of the Cardinal minor league farm system, who introduced the resolution.

Cougars Are Next In Tulane Crew's Quest For Titles

New York, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Washington State Cougars of 1931 are not the all-conquering outfit that swept through to a Pacific Coast Conference championship last year but there may be strength enough left to give Tulane at least a few uneasy moments at New Orleans Saturday.

This is a pivotal clash so far as Tulane is concerned for if the Southern Conference title-holders can chalk up a decisive victory over the far westerners they are almost certain to be invited to battle Southern California in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena New Year's Day.

Tulane thus far can boast an undefeated season and an undisputed Southern Conference title while Washington State has absorbed beatings from Southern California, California and Washington.

While Tulane is trying to earn its invitation to the far west, Southern California, already nominated as that section's representative in the Rose Bowl game, will try to clinch the Pacific Coast Conference title by whipping Washington.

POTENTIAL STAR LOOMS FOR OHIO TEAM

He's Cleveland Boy and Son of Man Who Played with Great Thorpe

DAD PRODS HIM ON

Mother, Too, a Fan Who Insists on the Best

Columbus, O., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Unlabeled predictions of the wise ones fall, one of the members of the Ohio State varsity backfield next year will be John Patrick McKinney, Jr., erstwhile star of the Cleveland East high school eleven, and during the past season quarterback on the Ohio State freshman squad.

McKinney has the background of a good football player. If he gets in there next fall he had better play good football for John Patrick McKinney, Sr., will be in the stand watching him every game, and he knows what it is to play good football. He used to run in the same backfield with Jim Thorpe.

"I wouldn't dare miss a tackle," said young John. "I couldn't face dad afterward. He was a real football player."

"You see it was this way with dad," he continued. "He had to play hard football. He played half for East Tech in Cleveland for two years and then grandfather died. Dad had to leave school and go to work—in the butter and egg business, which he's been in every since."

"He needed the money and when he got an offer to play with Canton Bulldogs, he took it. He didn't have any time for practice. They used to send him the signals and he would learn them during the week and then go down and play on Sundays. He played half along side of Jim Thorpe."

"Dad never talks much about any other football player. Whenever the papers or anybody gets to talking about an All-American halfback he just laughs. He says there was never a player who could touch Thorpe."

Up at Cleveland they say that McKinney, Sr., used to come back from Canton on Sunday nights so battered from his bucking charges against those pro lines that it seemed doubtful at times if he could make it to work the following morning.

But on those occasions, they say, Mrs. McKinney, who is quite a football fan, would assume the role of trainer and always had her husband in shape for work.

John, Jr., says he never heard father speak of this. "He wouldn't admit he was hurt anyhow. But I guess mother got me in shape for a game last year," he admitted. "It was before the West game for the championship. I was in bed with a bad leg for several days. She rubbed my leg all the time and I got in the game."

Incidentally East won the game and though McKinney has nothing to say about it, he was a big factor in his team's victory.

John, Sr., taught young John how to punt soon after he was big enough to kick a football, for he used to punt for his team when Thorpe wasn't in the lineup. "That's all he ever tried to teach me," said young John. "Said all he knew was old-fashioned stuff that a good coach would have to unteach."

Anyhow, young John now kicks a football between 50 and 60 yards and occasionally he gets one away for 65 or 70 yards. He has kicked 60 yards barefooted. Johnny Boehm, Coach at East, had him practice that way, he explained. "Said I was toeing them and made me take off my shoes. Believe me, you had better kick them right barefooted."

Young John is a kneeable lad. He weighs 185 to 190 and is about five feet 10 inches tall and is 19 years of age. He not only kicks but runs well and is an excellent passer.

Possible Enforced Vacation Will Not Stop Practice Says Coach

The financial situation which is threatening to close the local schools for part of the time will have no effect on the basketball season, it was intimated by school officials.

An agreement reached between Principal D. B. Ireland and Coach Howard E. Maurer definitely assures that basketball will be uninterrupted. The coach intimated that if school should be forced to have a longer vacation during the Christmas season than usual that he would remain in Washington C. H. at his own expense and devote his time without pay while school was not in session.

The regular number of practices will naturally come to the basketball team and it will not be handicapped by conditions that might occur.

It would be a sad plight of affairs if practice sessions were cut down for even a week or so just after the season gets underway. Unconditioned players and probably a few cancelled dates might result from such a procedure.

Practices are being held each evening at the Armory and the Blue and White squad has been cut to about 15 men. The first game is booked at London on December 11.

Definite information as to whether or not school will be dismissed earlier than had been planned for the holiday season will probably not be obtainable for at least another week.

Georgia's Star Gets Influenza

Athens, Ga., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Vernon (Catfish) Smith, Georgia's great end, was ill in an infirmary here today of what physicians feared might be influenza.

Smith, one of the greatest ends the South has ever produced, was expected to be well enough, however, to leave with the Bulldogs Saturday for their game with Southern California. Dr. H. I. Reynolds said his confinement was largely a matter of precaution.

Young John is a kneeable lad. He weighs 185 to 190 and is about five feet 10 inches tall and is 19 years of age. He not only kicks but runs well and is an excellent passer.

Bill Blewett, member of California's "wonder team" of 1923, has given up coaching after five years and will return to California as a student to obtain a degree.

EXPERT'S JOB ON "ALL" TEAM TOUGH

Plenty of Star Tackles, Ends and Halfbacks to Choose from

RENTNER OUT IN LEAD

Guards and Fullbacks Scarce This Year

By WILLIAM RITT

The season that ends the football season—the All-American, All-Sectional, All-Conference, All-State All-City and All-Everything Else season—is on.

And with its usual problems.

This time there are too many first-class halfbacks, tackles and ends. And not enough fullbacks and guards.

Always there seems to be a surplus of star talent at certain spots and a famine of it at others. That's the way it usually is and that's the way it is this year.

Not yet has the dream of the All-American Team picker—an outstanding player for each position—been realized.

ENDS—there are, aplenty. Vernon (Catfish) Smith of Georgia, Paul Ribbett of Penna., Jerry Darby of Tulane, Garrett, Arbelbide of Southern California, John Orsi of Colgate, Ray Moss of Purdue, Jim Cavalieri of Holy Cross, George Ellert of Syracuse. There are a few.

Tackles? Pick any two: Dallas Marvill and Jack Riley of Northwestern, Ed Krause of Notre Dame, Jim MacMurdo of Pittsburgh, Hugh Rhea of Nebraska, Paul Schwegler of Washington, Greg Kabat of Wisconsin, Turk Edwards of Washington State, Chris Martinez-Zorilla of Cornell, Allan Cook of Lafayette.

Halfbacks? Ha. Just a few: Ernest (Pug) Rentner of Northwestern—the one man who seems sure of selection—Marchmont Schwartz of Notre Dame, Gene McEver of Tennessee, Don Zimmerman of Tulane, Phil Moffatt of Stanford, Paul Reider of Pittsburgh, Jim Murphy of Fordham, and Bob Monnett of the Michigan State, Bill McCall of Dartmouth, Larry Schlus of Wesleyan, Jack Grossman of Rutgers, Edgar Westfall of Ohio Wesleyan, Bob Wilcox of Lafayette, Ernie Pinckert of Southern California, Gray Warren of Oklahoma, Don Wheaton of DePaul—Enough? All right.

The quarterback situation is peculiar.

Usually at this post the first-class candidates are as thick as a stack of bills on a bankrupt's desk.

Only four names present themselves at first thought: Orville Mohler of Southern California, Barry Wood of Harvard, Bill McCall of Dartmouth and Austin Downes of Georgia.

Clarence Munn of Minnesota looks like a sure man for guard. But who will be the other guard?

And fullbacks—well, there's Gus Shaver of Southern California, and maybe, Albie Booth of Yale.

At center the list is a bit longer. Ralph Baskethy of Pittsburgh and Tom Yarr of Notre Dame seemed to have the battle between them until reports of the stellar plays of Pete Gracey of Vanderbilt trickled northward.

Now there are quite a few candidates for the post, including Chester Miller of Purdue, Del Kenyon of Amherst, Al Delcambre of Southern Methodist, this fellow Ely of Nebraska, and many others.

It has always been our impression that at least a good share of the football feverishness is confined to the spectators. In other words, that the average bug in the stands works himself up into considerable more rather than the average boy down on the gridiron.

In the famous Yale-Dartmouth game, for instance, where the tempo of excitement ran high, Albie Booth raced down the field for a long pass. He was well covered by a Dartmouth player. The ball was grounded and the two players trotted back. Putting an arm on Albie's shoulder, the Dartmouth player inquired:

"Well, kid, what do you think about Yale's prospects for the basketball season?"

CHAMPIONS NO LESS

The College of the City of New York has captured just two football games this season and its second victory, 14-0 against Haverford, has produced hysterical results in the institution's department of public relations.

By the circuitous method of comparing scores over a range that carries to the mid-west and south, two C. C. N. Y. statisticians have come up for air with a chart showing that this college, on the basis of the Haverford victory, would figure to beat Harvard, 8 to 0; Yale 59 to 0; Columbia, 46 to 0; Chicago, 86 to 0; Michigan, 89 to 0; Northwestern, 191 to 0; and Notre Dame 191 to 0.

At that, it's a fair sample of how much weight can be placed in comparative scores during a football season. Usually they don't mean any more than the number of cheers per period.

It is to be hoped that Stanford's famous young track coach, Robert L. (Dink) Templeton, puts on a characteristic rally in fighting the illness that has had him down for a substantial count.

Dink has always been able to "take it" and furnished proof by withstanding the unusual procedure of building up his temperature to 107 degrees in the hospital as part of the treatment.

During this ordeal, Templeton utilized his few lucid moments by summoning a secretary and dictating his stories for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, for which he is a regular staff writer.

Tennessee after more or less concealing its football greatness from the public at large by sticking close to the region of the Great Smokey Mountains, barges into the intersectional spotlight for a championship game with New York university at the Yankee Stadium, December 5.

It may presage a change of policy at Knoxville. Earlier this year, the Vols were understood to be in quest of a New York game, preferably with Columbia, but they readily accepted the invitation to meet N. Y. U. for the benefit of the unemployed.

The game will give the east its first and last glimpse of the Tennessee powerhouse, featuring Gene McEver. The Vols were just a bunch of boys from the mountains when they came east to play Dartmouth in 1921 and Army in 1922, losing both encounters.

Since then, or rather, since Bob Neyland of West Point took charge in 1925, Tennessee has compiled a record unequalled by any major college or university in the country and that includes Notre Dame, Southern California, Utah, Alabama, and Tulane.

What great event took place in France on June 26, 1917?

How many eggs does a queen bee lay?

How much wire is used in making a window screen?

Correctly Speaking—

"As" should not be used too frequently in the sense of because. Say "I want you to come home now; it is time for supper," not "I want you to come home now, as it is time for supper."

CHAPTER 42

TO ALL outward appearances the visit of Mrs. Moran to the home of Mrs. Durand was only a little social call that might take place at any time along the fashionable north shore streets. But it had been arranged with something in mind.

Eleanor Durand was a little nervous as she walked into the library where Mrs. Moran was just giving her wraps to the maid. Eleanor hurried over to her. "My dear," she said taking her hands, "I'm so happy to see you. I was saying to Charles the other evening that we didn't see half enough of you people, but you know how it is. We've just returned from Europe and there are so many things in the house that need attention."

Eleanor knew as well as did Mrs. Moran that there wasn't a thing in the house that needed attention except Bruce. But of course one does not speak of things like that. Mrs. Moran had heard all about the happening at the country club with Mrs. Hayes and Lois as the central figures. She also knew that Mrs. Hayes had conveyed the facts by letter as fast as she could get them to Mrs. Durand, but that was not what Mrs. Moran had come to discuss.

She had come at Mrs. Durand's request. The morning following the party Mrs. Moran had been surprised by hearing the maid say, "Mrs. Durand to speak to you, ma'am." Mrs. Moran couldn't imagine why Mrs. Durand had been so attentive lately. Or rather, she could imagine. And she was just as eager as Mrs. Durand was to have something come of her thoughts.

For a time, the two women talked generally. Mrs. Durand had exhausted herself early on her trip to Europe because she and Charles hadn't been able to stay long enough to really see anything new.

"Of course this is our sixth time across," she hastened to add.

"I know," Mrs. Moran said politely. "It was too bad that you had to return so quickly."

"Business," Mrs. Durand said shortly. "Charles never knows when he has to be back here. Some of his affairs are in such a bad state."

"It's difficult to trust a lawyer implicitly," Mrs. Moran said helpfully. Then Mrs. Durand broke the ice bravely.

"Did Sybil have a pleasant time last night?" she asked.

Mrs. Moran beamed. "My, yes," she said glowingly. "She said it was a beautiful party, and of course she's so fond of Bruce, you know."

"Oh, is she?" Her eyebrows raised ever so slightly.

"Yes," Mrs. Moran would have liked to say more but she thought the next step should be made by Mrs. Durand. There was a short silence. Then Mrs. Durand went into the subject thoroughly.

"And Bruce likes Sybil," she said. Mrs. Moran was somewhat surprised to hear this after the pitiful tale that Sybil had told her concerning Bruce's attitude only this morning.

"We've been hoping, Charles and I, that they might get married," Eleanor hadn't intended to say it exactly like that—so pointedly. But she had begun to flounder. Therefore it was better to make a clean breast of it.

"We want Bruce to get married, to settle down," Mrs. Durand asserted. "We're willing to give him everything for him, everything that a young couple needs these days. It's a worry not to have him married."

Mrs. Moran knew. She wondered what Mrs. Durand would do if she had a girl on her hands to worry about. A boy could always get married. But a girl, well, especially a girl like Sybil who wasn't a vamp or the least bit of the come-litherly type, had to wait for someone to come along who admired her type. And the sooner she didn't come very speedily.

Mrs. Moran, therefore, was willing to agree with Mrs. Durand's plan or idea or whatever it was that she had. Mrs. Durand was not the type of woman to call one over to see her unless she had something in mind. "I spoke to Bruce last night about Sybil," Mrs. Durand went on. "He wouldn't do to tell Bruce of her plans. She would have to see them announced first by the newspapers and then she could simply hold him to the announcement with threats."

Mrs. Moran guessed how this engagement was to be arranged even before Eleanor Durand found the courage to tell her about it.

CONGRESS A MENACE TO BUSINESS, CLAIM

CREAMERY ASSOCIATION TOLD GOVERNMENTAL INTERFERENCE CAUSES SLUMP.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—(P)—P. W. Snow, director of the Federation of American business, told the American Association of Creamery Butter Manufacturers' annual convention today that the coming congressional session carried a menace to all citizens. "From industry's leaders down to the humblest place on the payroll."

Snow asserted congress had long been "a growing menace to business, and this time it meets with a certainty of attempted legislation which will serve only to add to the governmental burdens under which business is staggering."

Snow said governmental invasion of private effort had helped to produce a deficit "already half accumulated and the other half definitely certain, of $2,000,000,000, laying upon our citizens a tax burden that already has increased almost fifteen times as fast as the population since 1913."
